The certificate presented to eligible students of Kanyakumari, is evidence of satisfactory completion of the course, but does not entitle the holder to any legal right to specific professional practice.

Graduates are expected to share the information they learn in public and individual client settings only to the extent that they are comfortable with their level of knowledge and confident that they are not causing any potential harm by sharing information or explaining something that is beyond their own scope of understanding and safe practice.

Those who graduate at the Certified Ayurveda Practitioner level may incorporate their knowledge and training into any other health care discipline in accordance with that discipline's licensure and regulations. Practitioners not holding a health care license in any licensed discipline should provide therapies under the supervision and direction of a licensed professional. If the health care discipline of primary practice is not statutorily recognized and licensed in the State or jurisdiction of practice, the practitioner should obtain whatever recognition is available in her or his health care discipline by the highest and most widely recognized authority in that health care discipline.
